LOCAL PARAGRAPHS.

The school-board meets to-night.

The city council meets to-morrow evening.

The damage caused by the late rains upon the Memphis and Charleston road have been repaired, and trains are now running through without detention. The trains make close connection at Decatur for Nashville.

Yesterday afternoon three negroes met a man of their own color on the boulevard near the city limits, and robbed him of fifty-five dollars. Complaints being made to Capt. J. C. Mc-Donalds, the officer arrested a negro named Jim Brown, who is believed to be one of the thieves.

One of the changes inaugurated by the new management of the city railway, and which will be appreciated by the citizens, is the extension of the line, at one time formerly of the Popular street line to the south terminus of the Main street line. This extension will double the number of cars on that end of Main street, and, though of little benefit to the public, will make a feared divide in the percentage yield of the ticket-boxes. That's none of our business, however.

A correspondent writing from Milan says it is growing with wonderful rapidity. They now have a population of fifteen hundred. The number of votes has increased one hundred in the town within the last year. The town is situated in the best part of the Memphis county. The extension of the Central railroad between this place and Trenton, and also between this place and Huntington, must ever be made a place of importance, being at the crossing of the Mississippi Central and the Memphis and Decatur roads. By the way, the Memphis and Louisville road is perhaps the best road in the South, and is one of the most popular, gentlemanly, efficient and accommodating superintendents.

Mr. J. T. Fry, whose services to the road are invaluable.

PERSONAL.

Our citizens will learn with pain the death of John A. Sims. He died at Holly Springs, Mississippi, on the fifth instant, in the fifty-ninth year of his age. He filled through life a conspicuous position in Tennessee, Mississippi, and Alabama. At seventeen years of age, he became a member of the bar, and was a large contractor with the government in carrying the mails. Our citizens remember the fine stage-line of this company, running from Memphis to Decatur, Alabama, and to Jackson, Mississippi. When railroads were in process of construction in these lines, the Brothers Sims, became large contractors in their construction.

After the completion of the Central, Mr. Sims removed from Holly Springs, Mississippi, to Memphis, and became one of our most active and successful citizens. He died on the eve of the war, into which he entered heartily with his fellow-citizens of the South. His death was a great loss to the community.

He was a man of great energy and business ability, and was a valuable citizen. He was a
